

Paradigm part 2

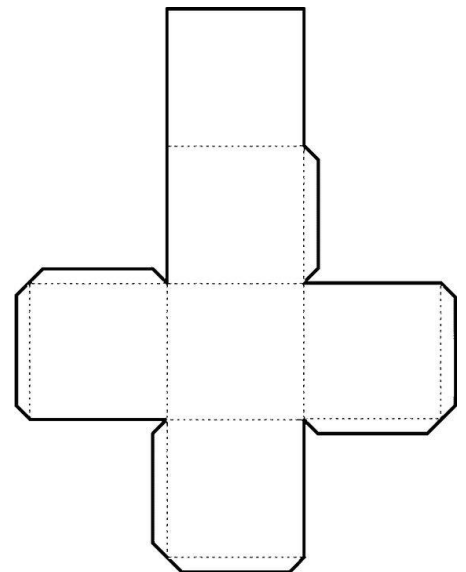

How did I get here?

Wednesday night, I printed a template to make a cube. After gluing the paper together, the result is a very delicate cube. It feels very light and it practically falls apart when you look at it. Hmmm.

I get up early in the morning to put the words on the paper cube. And it feels like hard work, I get stuck. Do not know where to put the words and how to make it work. I am not feeling it. Is it the shape? I prefer round shapes and love spirals, spheres, and hearts. Should I change the form altogether? Or just get to know the structure better?

Cube one

I decided to rest it, start the day and make a cube from a more robust material later. Thursday evening. We craft a bit with clay and sticks. To make a cube. But this cube caves in, the clay is too heavy. The wooden structure is not solid enough.

Ok, I cannot get around it, this cube needs therapy! 😊

cube two

Time to regroup. What do we have in the house that already is a cube? A cube that I can hold and play around with? I remember a toy from Thorins' baby years. Maybe it is still in the attic? Yes! It is perfect. Fun colors and sounds inside, it is soft and robust, you can play around with it, and get to know the structure of the cube.

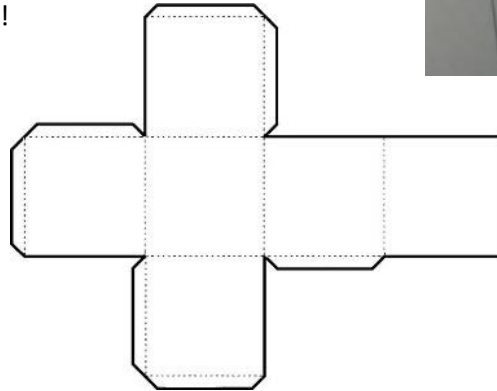

As it is getting late, we go to bed and I take my cube with me. Feeling the structure in the dark. I did not focus on the 4 corners and the square. I discovered the points where the 3 lines come together. I could feel the trine and I linked it to the video about polarity and finding a third equal opposite force to bring balance to the poles. It all came to life and made perfect sense. I fell asleep, trusting my subconscious would debrief me in the morning. And it did 😊

https://www.bol.com/be/nl/p/rubik-s-my-first-cube-breinbreker/9200000039192845/?referrer=socialshare_pdp_www

Morning reflections: Yesterday, the lock of our 3-season porch was broken. We could not open the door to go to the garden. So we called a locksmith. He replaced the lock. He said. "The key is alright but the lock was old, it had its time." I could not help to link it to "The Key" I just finished reading the book 5 days ago. And The weekend before 18-06-2022 I created my master Key. Time to take out my notes.

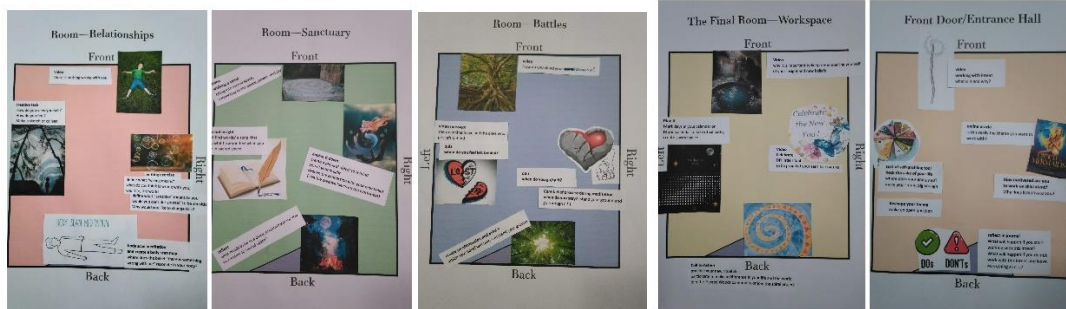

My attention was drawn to the drawing that I made next to the instinctual Key of Definition. It reminded me of M3 "the changing rooms" and the plan of our house, the map to the changing rooms. Then, I looked at the blueprint of the cube. And I got the idea to bring it all together!

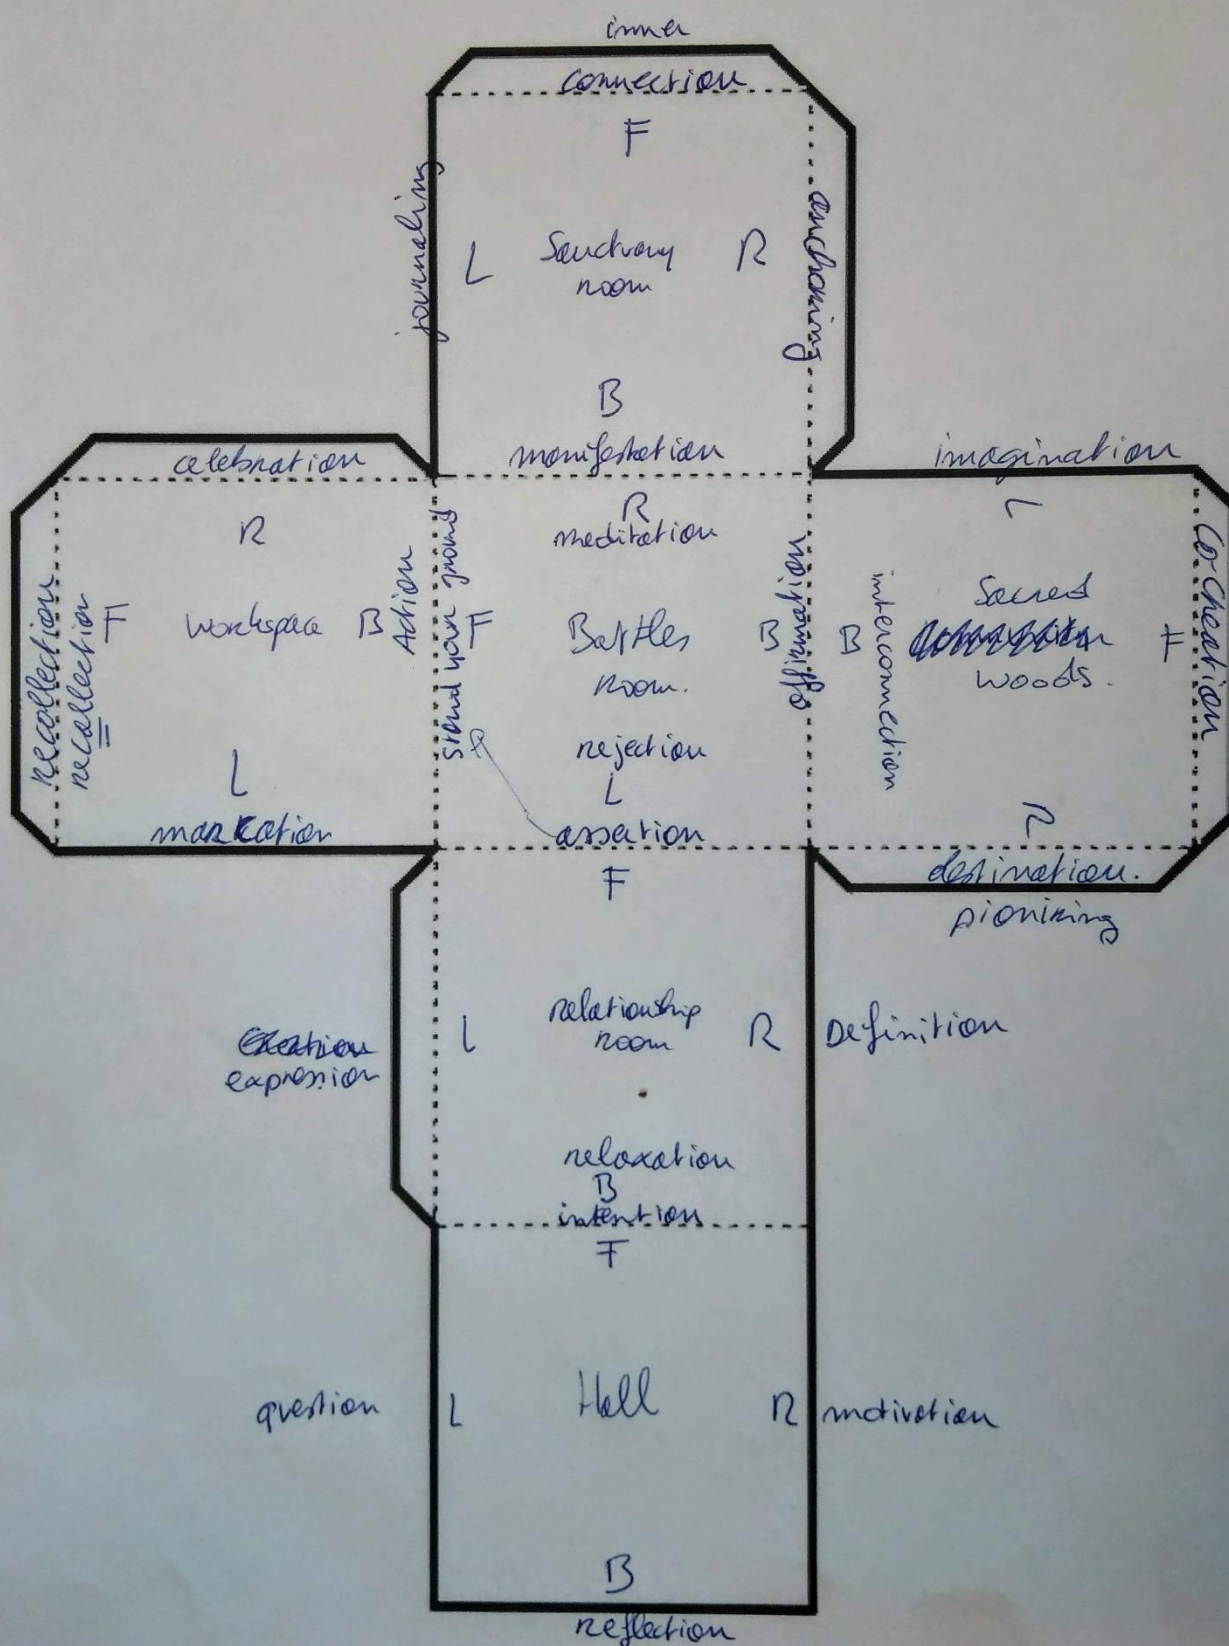

Did I mention this (Friday) is the first day of my holiday 😊
So in the evening I gave myself the gift of working out my idea.

*I started marking (F, B, L, R) on the blueprint of the cube

*I looked at all the rooms and the picture (triggers) that I made for all the rooms and I came up with one word to describe this trigger best and transferred this to a cube.

This is what came out:

After constructing the cube, I wrote all the words on it and started to make connections. This is what came out:

Hall

(pink) Ambition Physical goals (outer growth) = the point where intention, motivation, and definition meet

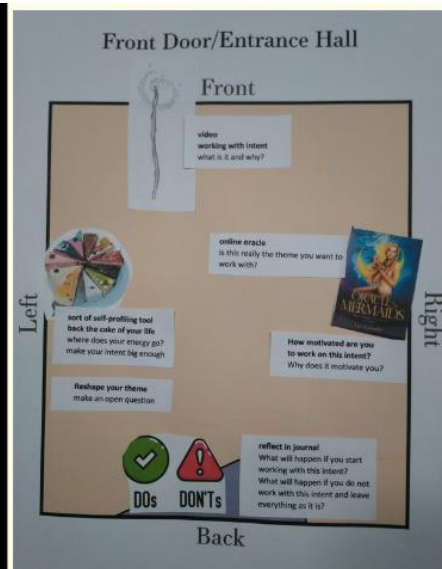

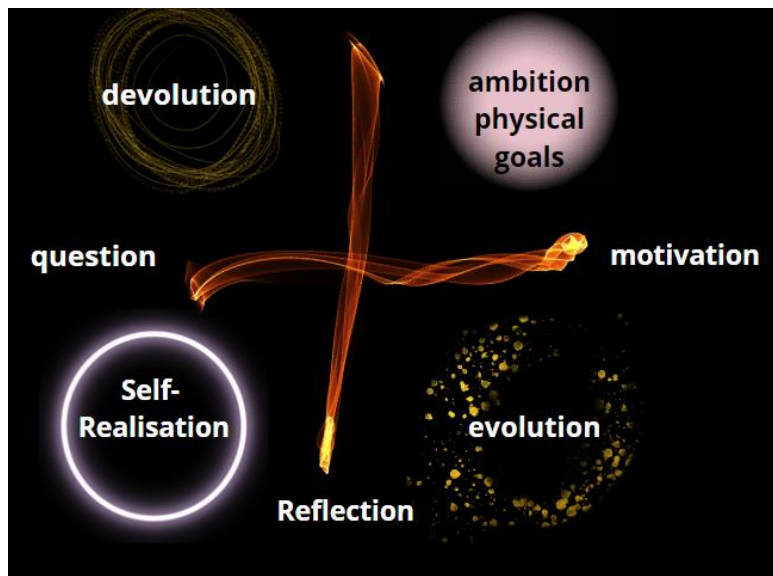

(green) Evolution (Iteration) = the point where motivation, reflection, and anchoring meet

(bleu) Self-realization (inner growth) = the point where reflection, question, and celebration meet

(yellow) Devolution = the point where question, intention, and expression meet

After that, I started looking for the polarity within and without:

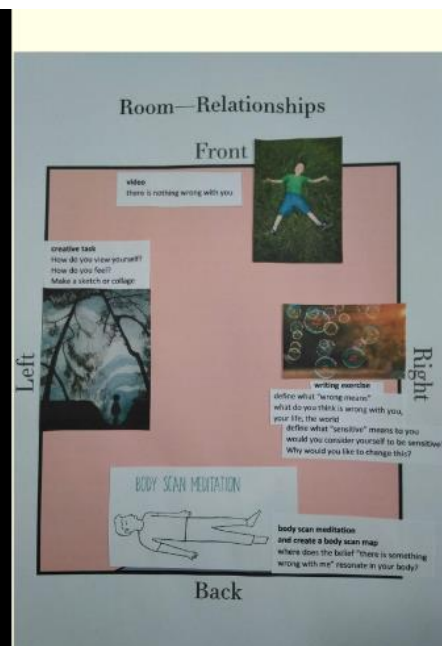

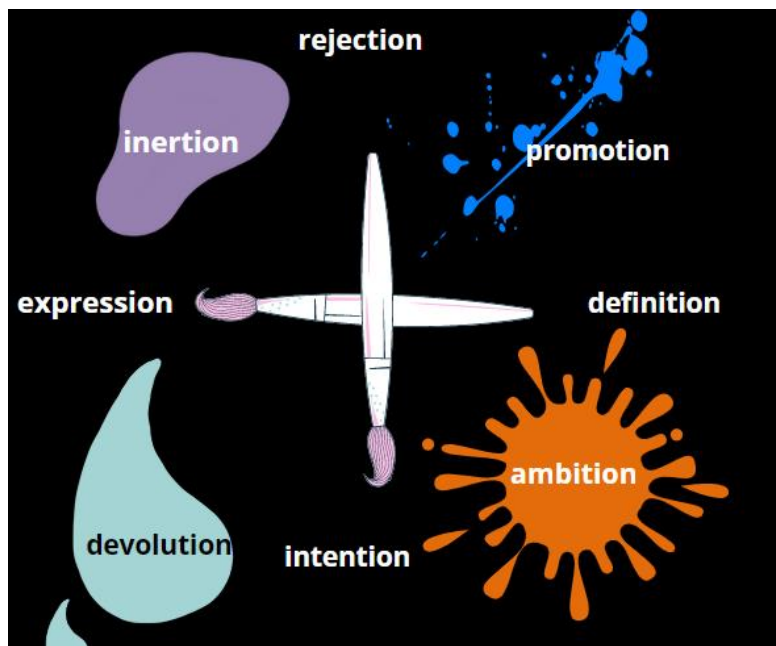

Relationship room

(pink) ambition

(Yellow) devolution

(red) inertia (inaction) is the point where assertion, rejection, and expression meet

(orange) promotion of the point where rejection definition and affirmation meet

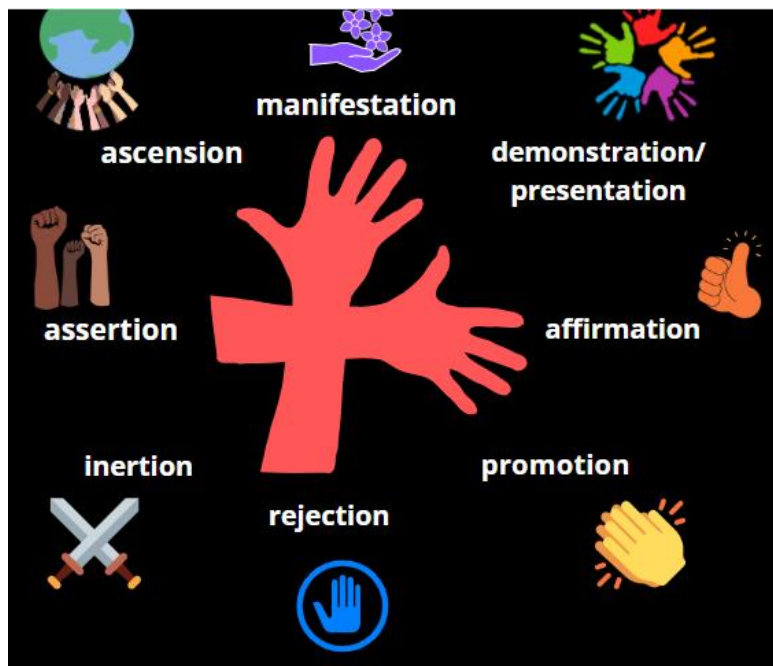

Battles Room

(red) inertion (inaction) is the point where assertion, rejection, expression meet

(orange) promotion the point where rejection definition an affirmation meet

(light blue) ascension the point where manifestation, assertion and celebration meet

(purple) demonstration the point where manifestation, demonstration, affirmation meet

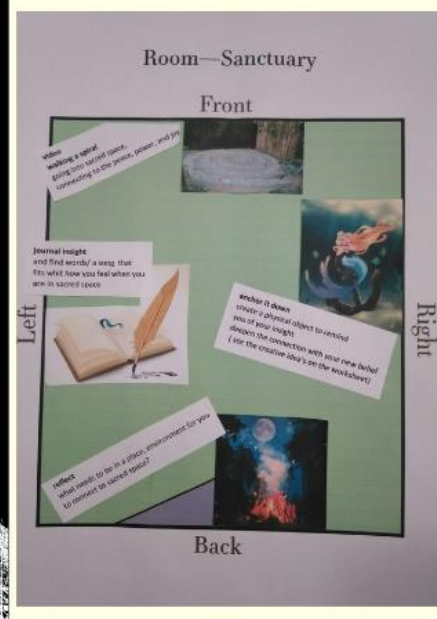

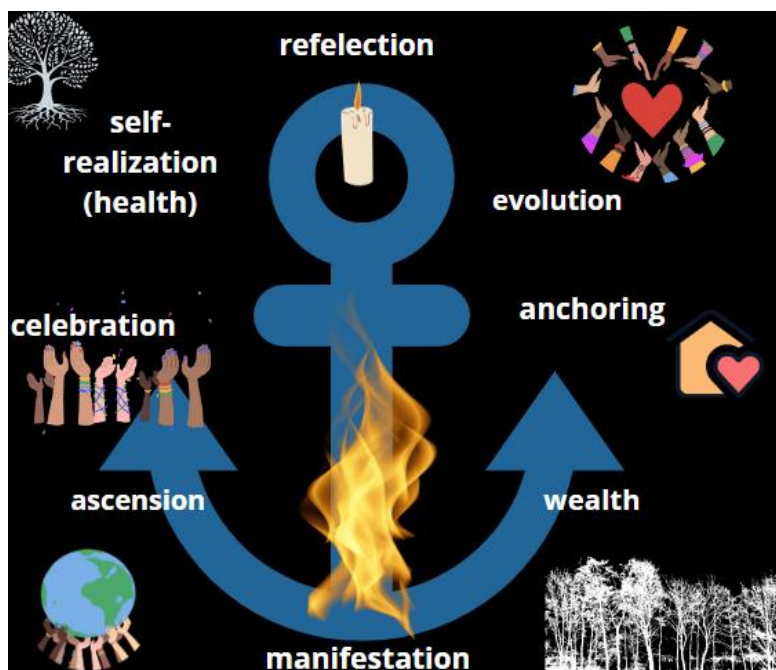

Sanctuary Room

(brown) wealth the point where anchoring, manifestation and affirmation meet

(light blue) ascension the point where manifestation, assertion and celebration meet

(green) Evolution (Iteration) = the point where motivation, reflection, and anchoring meet

(bleu) Self-realization (inner growth)= the point where reflection, question, and celebration meet

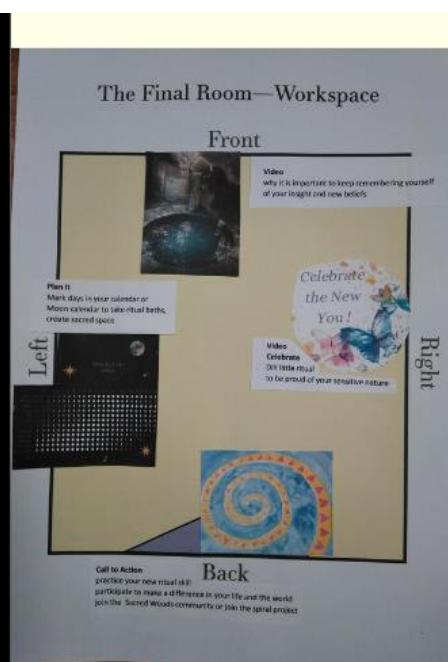

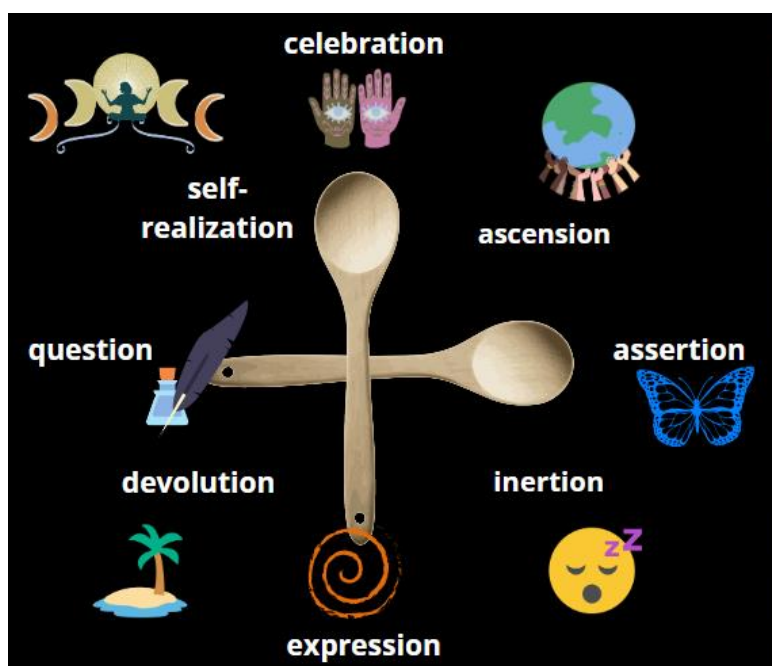

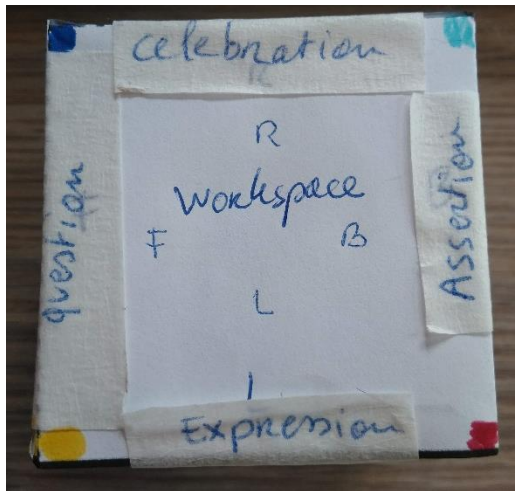

Workspace

(bleu) Self-realization (inner growth)= the point where reflection, question, and celebration meet

(light blue) ascension the point where manifestation, assertion and celebration meet

(Yellow) devolution

(red) inertia (inaction) the point where assertion, rejection, expression meet

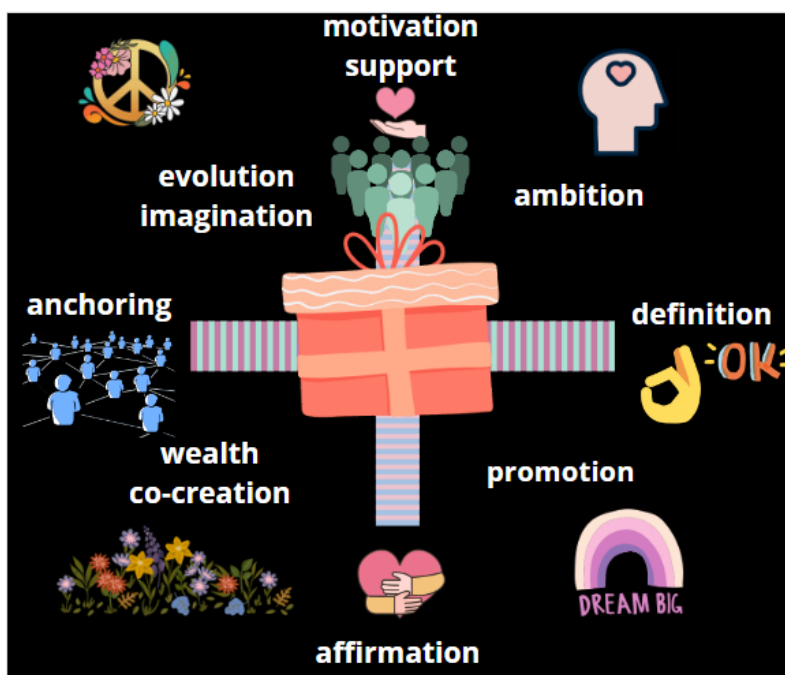

Change room (this was a present, as I filled in the whole cube, this square was shaped by all the previous rooms, so it is a sort of present/ change that is possible)

(brown) wealth the point where anchoring, manifestation and affirmation meet

(green) Evolution (Iteration) = the point where motivation, reflection, and anchoring meet

(pink) ambition

(orange) promotion the point where rejection definition an affirmation meet

The present
Gift of change for yourself or for the world

Constructing the cube, feeling how it works and how inspiring it is. So magical!!

Ps: You are probably a bit worried about cube 2. Well, Good news! It's on the mend, embracing the essence of its cube-ness 😊